A calorimeter contains 20.0 mL of water at 15.0 °C . When 1.50 g of X (a substance with a molar mass of 76.0 g/mol) is added, it dissolves via the reaction $X(s) + H_2O(l) \rightarrow X(aq)$ and the temperature of the solution increases to 25.0 °C . Calculate the enthalpy change, ΔH , for this reaction per mole of X. Assume that the specific heat of the resulting solution is equal to that of water [4.18 J/(g·°C)], that density of water is 1.00 g/mL, and that no heat is lost to the calorimeter itself, nor to the surroundings.
